RELATIVES OF LATE FRED DUNN ARE HERE FOR THE FUNERAL

Funeral services were held Thursday morning from Holmes Funeral home for the late Fred Dunn, who passed away early Monday morning. Rev. Charles Washburn officiated, burial taking place in Pine Grove cemetery.

Mrs. Ella Ramsey, half sister of the late Mr. Dunn, and her daughter, Mrs. Chester Latta and family, of Merced, are spending the week at the home of Supervisor and Mrs. C. S. Arbogast. They made the plans for the funeral of Mrs. Ramsey's brother. All are former residents of Nevada City.

The Arbogast sawmill, in the Blue Tent section, has had a good season's run with seven men employed. Mr. Kenneth Arbogast is in charge.

After viewing intricate telephone equipment, which handles Nevada City's hundreds of thousands of calls yearly, President F. F. Cassidy, of the Chamber of Commerce, told Miss K. Kinkead, resident manager (left above), that he would urge everyone to use this splendid opportunity to see the equipment and many special exhibits at the Telephone Exchane night (Friday) at 8:30. The huge model of telephone is on display.

HONOR CONFERRED ON NEVADA CITY GIRL

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Chapman received word from their daughter, Hiss Helen Chapman, senior at the University of California, that she has been elected to the Prytenaen Socieyt, the activity honor society of the student body.

Miss Chapman was initiated last Thursday. Among the distinguished guests at the ceremony were Mrs. Gordon Sproul, Dean Lucy Stebbins, Mrs. Blaisdell, and many other deans and prominent women.

An old custom was revived this semester. Novices were required by older members to wear caps and gowns with a banner of the society pinned on the gown, for one whole day on the campus, much to the embarrassment of the brand, new members who could not escape the bright rays of the limelight.

This is quite a distinguishing honor as only about 20 out of a field of 2,000 are admitted each semester. Invitations to membership depends on the merits of what one has accomplished. Miss Chapman is also a member of Theta Sigma Phi, a National Honor Society for woman's journalism. She is associate editor of the Daily Californian, the University of California's principal publication.

She is resident of International House, one of which has been founded at New York, Paris, Berkeley and Chicago Universities. This institution is designed for the purpose of establishing or bringing about better international understanding. Miss Chapman is a member of the cabinet which frames the policies for this house. She is secretary of the cabinet and one of four who constitues the executive committee as such, an ex-efficio member of all the subordinate committees. There are about 500 students of the various nationalities at International House.

LOCAL HUNTERS BAG PLENTY OF BUCKS

A party consisting of six local hunters went out Tuesday morning and bagged three bucks. Those in the party were Robert Tharp, R. N. McCormack, and son, R. N. McCormack, Jr., Dr. W. W. Reed, Carl Steger, Ray Steger, and Don Steger. Dame Rumor has it that the valiant deputy district attorney did not kill the four-pointer he brought in and proudly exhibited. Mr. Tharp denies this most strenuously and states that it is only an attempt to undermine his prowess as a huntsman.

J. J. Jackson, Cecil Hegarty, Louis Orzalli, Ray Davis and Mr. Wood composed a group that hunted north of Nevada City Monday. J. J. Jackson killed a four point buck that is about the largest deer brought in this season.

Supervisors C. S. Arbogast, of Nevada City and Frank Rowe, of Grass Valley, are enjoying a few days deer hunt in the Bowman Lake country, east of Nevada City.

CUTS HAND

Mrs. F. H. Perry, of Willow Valley, cut her hand seriously while chopping wood with an axe, Thursday. She was treated by Dr. B. W. Hummelt, who took ten stitches in the wound.

NEVADA CITYAN AT TELEPHONE EXHIBIT IN 1876

The Open House has brought forth a story from a prominent business man here who as a school boy in Eastern Pennsylvania in 1876 attended the Centennial Exposition with schoolmates each Saturday.

One day they visited the exhibit of Professor Bell and his newly invented telephone. He kindly explained it to the deeply interested boys. While they were there Don Pedro and his Empress, of Brazil, came in to thank Professor Bell for an invention that had helped the hearing of the Empress. The professor explained that it was as nothing to this present invention and sent each of them into different room to talk over the phone to each other. The small boys were deeply impressed with the Santa Claus appearance of Don Pedro.

The next day the visit was published in the press in Philadelphia with the result this almost unnoticed exhibit was visited by such throngs that they turned out to be a mob, and no one had a chance to view it.

A couple of years later this boy graduated and went to assist his father in his coal mine and office. Through his experience he persuaded his father to install a five mile phone line. When the farmers heard the bell and saw the boy and his brother answer the calls they were amazed and could hardly believe the conversation actually took place.

FORTY YEARS AGO N. C. FIRST PHONE

Forty-one years ago, Nevada City's first telephone was installed in Winton's drug store, at the corner of Broad and Pine streets, the site now occupied by the Union office. A year later, the telephone exchange was established.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the local employees of The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company are celebrating the fortieth anniversary of the exchange by holding open house in their present-day headquarters, at 318 Broad street, and have invited all to be their guests.

From 1 to 8:30 p. m., each day, the telephone employee hosts and hostesses conduct visitors through through the central office, and explain the permanent equipment and special exhibits, according to Miss K. Kinkead, who is resident manager of the exchange.

Declaring that Nevada City's telephone history is unusually interesting, Miss Kinkead said, "Some of our pioneers may remember when a telephone line, consisting of a single iron wire was strung between spindly poles, from Grass Valley to this city. That was in 1893. The telephone in those days was looked upon as being more or less a novelty or plaything.

"However, after the exchange was established, on December 1, 1894, and a small switchboard was installed in Winton's drug store, 'having a telephone' soon came to be the thing to do. While there were but 31 telephones connected to the switchboard in 1895, there were 107 in 1897, and 158 by the end of the century.

NEV. CITY PHONE EXHIBIT BRINGS MANY VISITORS

Resident Manager Miss K. Kinkead, of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, in Nevada City, states that the many visitors to the exhibit were greatly pleased with the display and very interested in the exhibition of the inner workings of the telephone's widespread ramifications. Exhibits have also been placed in the windows of the Alpha Store and S. Lee Leiter show windows, showing the trans-Pacific service and the early days of the tleephone service.

MANY SEE EXHIBIT

The last day of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph exhibition will close at 8:30 this evening. Hundreds of Nevada City people have already visited and enjoyed this interestitng and educational display. A replica of the original telephone as invented by Alexander Graham Bell is shown, besides many other exhibits of great interest.

The huge telephone cables used in the metropolitan areas, where the use of poles is impossible, are displayed in crosscuts to show the number in one cable. One cable has 2424 wires insulated and twisted in a single cable.

Another feature is the diagram of the method in which trans-Pacific telephone calls are made. A short wave plant in Dixon, California takes your voice, sends it to Hawaii or the Phillipines, answering voices are taken at Point Reyes, and then to your phone, in this city, in this way it is possible to talk to some one in Honolulu or Manila as if he were in the next room. The conversation is carried in such a way that is absolutely private, no one can "tap" your conversation.

The teletype has been demonstrated every day at the exhibit also. The teletype is a comparitively new invention which enables a person to correspond by writing. A keyboard similar to a typewriter is used and the message is typed to a teletype in another city and a correspondence is carried in writing. By this method there is a printed record of the conversation and many mistakes are eliminated. there is a teletype in almost every large city of the United States, thereby making it very convenient to use.

WORK ADVANCED ON N. C. AIRPORT

Mr. Uren states that a great deal of progress has been made toward the completion of the airport runways. One is already finished and has been scarified and dragged, and all the timber has been cut from the north end. Work has been started on the runway.

Mr. Uren also states that there is plenty of wood for all who will take the trouble to cut it. The trees have all been felled and limbed so that it is only necessary to cut and haul it away.

NEW MACHINERY FOR GERMAN BAR MINE

Mr. Thomas Stephens and his mill man, Dan Kuhnle, were down from the German Bar mine near Alleghany Wednesday and returned with materials for the property. The 35 ton daily capacity ball mill has been brought up from the bay district and is being installed. Two more loads of machinery are to be shipped from J. E. Knapp Co., of San Francisco.

Last Tuesday electricity was brought into the property to electrically equip all machinery. Eight narrow gauge car loads of lumber have been hauled to the property for the surface buildings.

Mr. Stephens stated it will be about two months before the mill will be in operation. Winter snows hamper traveling so all equipment is being taken in now so that the mine can be in operation this winter.

LODI EDITOR VISITS HERE

George Moore, editor of the Lodi Sentinel was a Nevada City visitor yesterday, here in the interest of the Merriam campaign.

Local Federal Housing Program Campaign On

Mr. Fred F. Cassidy, Chairman of the Federal Better Housing Campaign for Nevada City and Grass Valley, has appointed Mr. Fred E. Conner vice chairman for Nevada City and Mr. John Looser vice chairman for Grass Valley. Mr. Cassidy has appointed his Nevada City executive committee and called a meeting for tonight at eight o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce. The committee selected by Mr. Cassidy consists of Mr. Fred E. Conner, vice chairman, John Fortier, Mr. C. M. Brown, Mr. John O'Neill, Mrs. Florence Kjorlie and Mrs. Lily P. Leete.

LOANS ENCOURAGED

Mr. Cassidy states that the government is encouraging every one to take advantage of the loans to modernize their homes and office buildings and that it is up to these communities to seize the opportunity to beautify their cities by utilizing the loans. These loans will put a large amount of money into circulation, thereby stimulating business and employment, benefiting the community as a whole, as well as the individual who takes the loan.

Mr. E. M. Rector, vice president and manager of the local Bank of America stated that many loans have already gone through the bank both here and at Grass Valley, many more are now pending, and the loaning officers of the banks are kept busy receiving applications. The Bank of America and its staff are co-operating in every way possible with the government in its efforts to afford the public the advantages of the long terms and easy payments permitted under the Modernization Act. Mr. Rector directs attention to one misapprehension which appears to exist in many quarters viz: that loans for entirely new buildings construction are available under the present terms of the Housing Act. To date, no loaning facilities for this specific purpose are available under the first phase of the Housing Act. It is generally presumed, however, that arrangements for loans of this kind will be announced by the government a little latter.

In the meantime, the Bank of America, is ready and willing to accept applications or afford information to everyone interested in improving and modernizing existing properties.

HOW T OGET LOANS

Here are the answers to questions that may be asked in regard to securing one of the government loans as released by Mr. Cassidy:

1 Who May Apply?—Any property owner, individual, partnership or corporation with a regular income from salary, commissions, business, or other assured source. It is not necessary to be a depositor in the financial institution consulted.

2. To Whom Do I Apply?—To any National Bank, State Bank or Trust Company, Savings Bank, Industrial Bank, Building and Loan Association or Finance Company approved by the Federal Housing Administration; or to a contractor or building supply dealer.

3. How Much May I Apply For?—From $100 to $2,000, depending on your income, for improvements on any one property, and in connection with not more than five properties unless approved by the Federal Housing Administration, Washington, D. C.

4. How Long May Notes Run?—For any number of months from one to three years. (Notes extending from 37 months to five years may be submitted to the Federal Housing Administration by financial institutions for special consideration.)

5. What Security Is Required?—That you have an adequate regular income and a good credit record in your community.

6. What Assurance Need I Give?—That you own the property. That the income of the signers of the note is at least five times the annual pay-

MUSIC SEASON IN SACRAMENTO OPENS OCT. 27TH

Sacramento will have five major concerts during the season of 1934-1935, presented under the management of Wilfred L. Davis. The Don Cossack Russian male chorus will open the season Saturday night, October 27, at he Auditorium, at popular prices.

This season marks the beginning of the fifth American tour of the celebrated Don Cossacks. During the fall months the Russians will have to move quickly and work hard to fill the sixty-seven engagements they must complete in seventy days. In most of the cities the Cossacks are visiting, they are already an established musical institution. So great is their popularity, that out of sixty-seven engagements, only five are first appearances.

After the first of the year, before departing on their first tour of Mexico, the chorus will fill twenty-six more dates in thirty days.

On completion of their American tour the Don Cossacks will have sung 2700 concerts since their debut in Vienna, just ten years ago— a record not paralleled by any other known organization in the musical world.

Tickets are on sale at Ye Music Shoppe by Willis Bass.

The other artists coming to Sacramento are the great Mary Garden; December 13; the famous baritone, John Charles Thomas, January 17; Ruth Slenczynski, March 9; and Feodor Chaliapan, greatest singer in this generation, March 20.

NEVADA CITY ATHLETIC CLUB TO HOLD OPENING

Kjorlie, principal of the high school, and Mr. Francis Finnigan, representing the Chamber of Commerce.

The first part of the evening's entertainment will consist of informal activity such as ping-pong, volley ball, and boxing for every one desiring to participate. Those intending to take part in this activity are requested to bring tennis or gym shoes.

From 9 to 10 p. m., exhibition wrestling, boxing, gymnastics and ping-pong will be staged. Those who will participate in these exhibitions are Dick Stevens, Norman Chatfield, Ray Wilde, Everett Brown, Santinelli and "Bub" Tobiassen.

LET'S NOT BE SCARED

Merriam and his scared, rich backers are making a bogy man of Upton Sinclair. "Vote for me" cries Merriam, "or the big bad wolf will get you."

Good men and true are being importuned to abandon their real hope of progress in such a candidate as Raymond L. Haight for governor, and to espouse the course of Merriam as safer than that of Sinclair.

But think for a minute. Is Merriam and the forces of which he is the spearhead, really safer than Sinclair? Has a reactionary, an old-guard Republican, backed by old guards of both parties any business anywhere in government today? We are in transit, the world, the United States, and California. We are going somewhere, just where we doubt if the President of the United States can tell us. We are in the midst of a New Deal, and Merriam fits into the picture as well as—say, Lucifer in a convention of saints.

If we must get scared, or be scared, into voting for a candidate we dislike, we had best examine Frank Merriam very carefully before we vote for him rather than Sinclair. As between the two there is more smell of brimstone lingering about Merriam. The cloven hoof of special privilege peeks out from beneath the snowy robes with which the State Republican Old Guards recently clothed Frank Merriam.

Merriam to a tremendous number of California voters, is anathema, a firebrand, whose very name causes revolt and threats of an unheaval.

If we must be scared into voting for someone we thoroughly distrust, let us be sure our fears are at least well informed fears and directed toward the real source of danger.

And we do refuse to let Mr. Sinclair, with his sound and fury brighten us. Many things he has done—as a novelist—that we admire. The Chicago stockyards, for instance, have been largely cleaned up, as a result of Mr. Sinclair's "The Jungle." He knows how to accomplish things, some things, through his talent for writing. As a governor, however, we are sure he would be a tremendous flop. He would be unable to fulfill any of his important promises. California is not the Chicago Stockyards, and if it were, he could do much more good for it by writing a novel about it than by trying to govern it.

A lot of thoughtless people speak of Sinclair as a menace, meaning, of course, a menace to the social order and financial stability of California. We differ sharply with these people. We think Sinclair is a menace of a sort, but not particularly to California.

Sinclair's real menace is to the New Deal. He is a country-wide menace. If this carpet bagger, this experimenter, this windmill tilting novelist, should be elected governor of California, and should attempt to put his spurious version of the New Deal into practice here, the inevitable failure will go to discredit the New Deal, as many reasonable folks see it and believe in it, throughout the country.

It is true that North Dakota has tried and failed in much of the Sinclair program. He is not the author of this chimerical scheme, merely the appropriator. But the country at large doesn't take North Dakota very seriously. But let California set out to follow Sinclair into his revamped North Dakota Utopia, under the penant of the New Deal, and we doubt whether the New Deal (Rooseveltian model) can survive anywhere. A little medicine carefully administered with doctors and nurses all watching, may help us, spoonful by spoonful. But here's a man with kegs of strong medicine. A novelist, wearing the outward semblance of a law-giver—in other words an arrant quack, is going to pour those kegs of medicine down our throats.

The danger of Sinclair then is that of a misfit, an incompetent dreamer in the governor's chair, holding a great state in stalemate for four years, and actually bringing discredit on the New Deal, to which many of us are giving a conditional allegiance.

But why be scared either of Merriam or Sinclair? Why not do the reasonable, progressive, and loyal thing—Vote for a Californian, Raymond L. Haight, and let both of these fulminating carpet baggers go hang.

If and Perhaps

If I were, now, a Communist,
I'd hide myself away
To Moscow town, in Russia land,
And there prolong my stay;
I'd put in extra heavy licks
And labor like a man,
To finish up in record time
That five or ten year plan.

Perhaps in search of Liberty,
To Italy I'd fly,
And cheer as regimented throngs
Of Black Shirts passed me by;
And when the tasks of day were done,
Beneath one blood red star,
I'd smile to see wee, darkeyed lads
Embrace the god of war.

And if I felt myself oppressed
In good old U. S. A.,
Maybe to Germany I'd go
And settle down to stay;
There, as I goose-stepped down the street,
I never would forget
To raise my right hand in salute
And keep it up—you bet!

But there are things I'd never do
In any of these lands.
I wouldn't mount a cracker box
And shout and wave my hands
For should I thus express myself,
I'm very sure, you see,
Some one would stand me by a wall
And take a crack at me.

—A. Merriam Conner.

Stand Fast—America!

By Den Walters

REPEATEDLY, Woodrow Wilson urged upon his countrymen the necessity for participation in political affairs.

He pleaded with Americans to VOTE.

Wilson was proud of America and of his citizenship. But he realized the danger to the form of our Republic through minority rule.

"We have got to make politics a thing in which an honest man can take his part with satisfaction."

And again, he said:

"The vitality of America lies in the brains, the energies, the enterprise of the people throughout the land; in the efficiency of their factories and in the richness of the fields that stretch beyond the borders of the town."

"Do you not see that just as soon as the old self-confidence of America, just as soon as her old boasted advantage of individual liberty is taken away, all the energy of her people begins to slacken, to grow loose and pulpy, without fiber?"

America is today facing a crisis as great as that which it faced during the days of President Wilson. Enemies of our form of government—thousands of them advocating sabotage, arson and other forms of violence—seek to overthrow us. As a nation we are confronted with strange theories of government advanced by impractical men clever enough to sway numbers of thoughtless citizens by vain and illusionary promises.

Our best and perhaps our only opportunity to defend our nations, our homes, our business, our investments, our hopes for security for our children from these attacks is to use our rights as citizens—and VOTE.

Whatever our personal political beliefs may be—they can not be translated into governmental action unless we take the few moments required on election day to go to the polls.

Stand steadfast, my countrymen, and cast your ballots.

THE NEW DEAL
There was a young man wanted Beer.
He wanted it sparkling and clear,
When he found the New Deal,
he let out a squeal,
It was here that he found it was

PUNTS AND FUMBLES

By G. W. L.

LAST week end was one of upsets in Coast football circles. The mighty Trojans of U. S. C., collapsed before the onslaught of a determined and battling team from Washington State. The famed Cotton Warburton was just another ball carrier, and not a very effective one at that, while Christofferson at W. S. C., proclaimed himself a candidate for All-Coast honors by his great ball carrying ability. U. S. C., in order to be reckoned at all in the fight for the Pacific football championships, had better be searching for a line which can hold long enough to spring Warburton or Wotkins in the clear.

The Marauding Moragans, of St. Marys, upset the applecart at Memorial Stadium in Berkeley Saturday by beating California 7-0. The game set a new high in fumbles and all around slip-shod playing. The only reason California lost was because they out-fumbled the Gaels at every opportunity. The lone touch down was scored on a blocked kick which was fumbled by a recovring St Marys player and finally fallen upon by Schreiber across the goal line for the score. California had abundant opportunity to score, but lacked the goal line punch. Thorell, Cal. sophomore fullback, was one of the outstanding players on the field, Nichelini starred for the Gaels.

Up in Oregon, Stanford played her first conference game, with O. S. C., and won handily by the score of 17-0, and in doing so uncovered another line-smashing back in "Red" Ledbetter, of last year's frosh team. This boy took up where Grayson left off and punched over a score by the old-fashioned line buck, as well as making other substantial gains during the day.

In Kaezar Stadium, Sunday, the University of San Francisco lost a tough one to Santa Clara 6-0, in a ding-dong struggle. Santa Clara is one of teams to beat this year and it will be interesting, to put it mildly, when she tangles with St. Marys.

Next week two coast teams will play inter-sectional games. Stanford will take on Northwestern at Palo Alto, while the Trojans journey back East to play Pittsburg, and it looks as though Pittsburgh would get revenge for previous defeats at the hands of U. S. C.

LAKE OLYMPIA DANCE PAVILION OPENS SAT.

Lake Olympia dancing will open for the fall and winter season with a big dance and ball this Saturday, and will be one of the most enjoyable events that has ever been given at this popular resort.

Dancing over the water pavilion has been completely renovated and made over into an indoor ballroom. A central oil burning heater has been installed to heat the hall, it is expected that it will be very warm and snug when cold weather comes.

The music for the grand opening will be furnished by Rollie Barton and his orchestra, which has just completed an engagement at Lake Tahoe and is well known around Sacramento.

Hammill, Fossa, Abbott, and Thurston will manage the dances to be given at the Lake. The management wishes to announce that the dances will be conducted in an orderly and decent manner, so that every one will have the greatest pleasure at the affairs.

The use of herbs under the care of this successful herb specialist has brought relief to thousands of ill health sufferers. A trial and you will know for yourself.

From Aunt Sarah

Here's that recipe for the dainty Orange Marmalade that is so fine on toast for breakfast or the hot breads for supper or at afternoon tea, it is of much finer texture and much daintier to serve than the ordinary strong flavored orange marmalade.

Afternoon Tea Marmalade

3 oranges
1 lemon
1 grapefruit
Sugar and water.

Put oranges, lemon and the grapefruit through a food chopper, catching all juice in a pan. Measure this ground mixture in a measuring cup. Add to it three times its own volume of water and let it stand 24 hours. Next day boil mixture three-fourths of an hour. Let stand another twenty-four hours. Measure, then add an equal quartity of sugar and boil twenty minutes, then seal in glasses.

This marmalade is delicious on hot breads, try it on pop-overs.

Pop-Overs

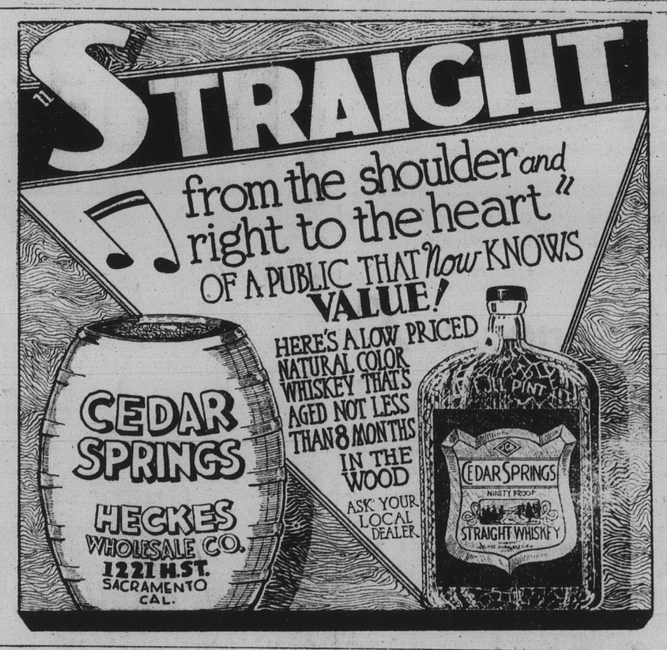

1 cup flour (sifted twice)
⅞ cup milk
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt.

Put flour in bowl, make a well in the center, drop in the salt and unbeaten eggs. Add the milk gradually, stirring in widening circles. Stir for two minutes. Bake in hot pans or eathern ware cups for thirty minutes in a little hotter than medium oven.

SERA MAY WORK ON NEVADA CITY PROJECTS

The engineer of the SERA from Sacramento was in Nevada City Wednesday looking over the Nevada City work projects. With Mr. George Calanan he inspected the water main which connects with the Sugar Loaf reservoir and looked over the Nimrod street project. He inspected the swimming pool and envirous and took note of the need for draining the grounds, cutting the brush and a general clean-up. He suggested that the City Engineer, Mr. Ed. C. Uren, prepare plans of the needed work to be done. He will return to Nevada City in about a week to inspect the plans and if feasable, as he believes they will be, will present them to the SERA authorities and he believes that they will grant SERA aid to carry out the plans.

"You'd better shet up."

"I won't shet up, Hays. Someone has to tell you. And I'm that fellow. There's no hand out against you in this outfit. Never heard of a bunch of riders who'd work like dogs while the boss was twiddling his thumbs and talking mysterious."

"I ain't ready to leave Star ranch an' now I'll have to!"

"Why ain't you ready?" queried Smoky, curiously. "Our work's all done. We've cleaned out the ranch, except for a few thousand head. We've got the long green. You ought to be tickled to death."

"I'm not through here," replied the robber.

"Smoky, why don't you ask Hays what this mysterious deal is?" queried Jim, sarcastically.

From a cornered lion Hays degenerated into a cornered rat. Jim sank a little in his boots while his upper muscles corded.

"Hank, what's got into you?" queried Smoky.

"Smoky, the boss is up a tree," said Jim, caustically. "He means to rob Herrick all right. But that's only a blind. It's the girl!"

"Thet gold-headed gurl we seen you drivin' hyar?"

"Yes. Herrick's sister."

"Haw! Haw! So thet's what's eatin' you, Hank?"

Hays had reached his limit and probably, but for Smoky's mirth, would have started hostilities. He hesitated, but there was a deadly flare in the eyes he had fixed on Wall.

Smoky got between them. "See hyar, Hank. So that's the deal? An' you'd do fer pore Jim hyar jest because he's onto you? . . Wal, if you're so keen as thet to draw on somebody, why, make it me. I started this. I dragged Jim into it. An' I ain't goin' to let you take it out on him."

Then Hank Hays came back to himself.

"Jim's right. Smoky, you're right," he declared, hoarsely. "I'm bullheaded. . . . An' I've lost my bull head over Herrick's sister."

"There. Spoke up like a man," declared Smoky, heartily relieved. "Why didn't you come thet clean long ago? Neither Jim nor me nor any of us blame you fer admirin' thet gurl. And if you'd gone crazy, an' dragged her away into the brakes with us, we'd quit you cold."

Hays bent to pick up the roll of bills.

"Fall to, men. I've got to do some tall thinkin'," he said, and left them.

Before they were half finished with their supper Hays entered.

"We're shakin' the dust of Star ranch tonight," he said, deliberately. "Pack up an' leave at once I'll come later. If I don't meet you at Smoky's camp I'll meet you shore at midday in thet cedar grove above the head of Red canyon."

No one asked any more questions or made any comments. Whatever they thought about Hays' peculiar way of leading his band they kept to themselves. Jim Wall was not greatly relieved, still he concluded that Hays must abandon any plot he might have concocted toward Herrick's sister. At any rate whatever was in Hays' mind Jim could not further risk alienating him or his men. Jim would have to ride out with them. If he stayed behind to spy upon Hays or frustrate any attempt he might make to call upon the Herricks, he would have to kill Hays.

Dusk was mantling the valley when Jim went out. Under the bench the shadows were dark. From the shelter of the pines he looked for Hays, expecting to find him standing guard. But the robber was not on the porch. He was stalking to and fro along the brook, and he was no more watching for Heeseman than was Jim. His bent form, his stride, his turning at the end of his beat, his hands folded behind his back—all attested to the mood of a gloomy, abstracted, passion-driven man.

Whereupon Jim repaired to his covert, rolled his bed and made a pack of his other belongings. What to do with the two packages of bills, this last of which was large and clumsy for his pockets, was a puzzle. By dividing the two into four packets he solved it. Then he carried his effects down to the cabin. All was cheery bustle there. The men were glad to get away from Star ranch. They talked of the robbers' roost Hays had always promised them, of idle days to eat and drink and gamble, of the long months in hiding.

"Wal, you all ready?" queried Hays, appearing in the doorway.

"Yep, an' bustin' to go."

"On second thought I'd like one of you to stay with me. How about you, Latimer?"

"All right," declared Sparrowhawk.

In a few more minutes all the men leaving were mounted. The pack animals, with packs gray against the darkness, straggled up the trail.

"Wait at your camp till sunup," said Hays, conclusively. "An' if I'm not there I'll meet you about noon shore at head of Red canyon."

Without more words or ado Smoky led off behind the pack horses, and the five riders followed. Once across the brook all horses took a brisk trot. Jim Wall looked back. Then he saw a bright light on the bench. That was from Herrick's house. An unfamiliar sensation, like a weight of cold lead in his breast, baffled Jim. He knew he was glad never to see Helen Herrick again.

About midnight Smoky turned the pack animals up the slope into the woods, and after a mile of rough going emerged into an open canyon head.

"Hyar we air," said Smoky. "Throw things an' git to sleep. I'll stand first guard."

Jim unrolled his bed beside a rock, and pulling off his boots and unbuckling his gun belt he crawled under the blanket.

Crack of ax and Happy Jack's voice pierced his slumber, both recognized before he opened his eyes. Jim sat up, stretched, and reaching for his boots he gazed around. The men were stirring, two around the camp fire and others among the horses.

"Wal, long past sunup," said Slocum, as Jim approached the fire. "Who was it bet Brad thet Hank wouldn't show up?"

"Nobody," replied Lincoln.

"Jim, suppose you take your rifle an' sneak down an' knock over a deer," suggested Smoky.

Three hundred yards down the slope Jim emerged into the open. There were no riders on the winding, white trail.

Stealthily working back into the timber he soon espied two deer about sixty paces distant, long ears erect. He killed the buck standing.

Upon his return to camp Smoky greeted him with a grin.

Motorists Now Paying More Than Quarter Total Income Of State Government In U. S.

Map shows relative share of states' total tax revenues paid by motorist through taxes on gasoline alone in 1932, latest income data available. Gasoline sales taxes provide more than 56% of Florida's tax revenue, about 50% in Ohio, and 33 1/3% in 10 other states.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Back of agitation for reduction of gasoline tax rates in Michigan, Ohio, Florida, Tennessee, Colorado, Massachusetts, New York, South Carolina, and other states is the picture of the motorist paying, through this one levy, more than one-fourth of all tax revenue collected by state government!

Probably none suspected when the first 1c gasoline tax was imposed by Oregon in 1919 that tax rates would rise as high as 11c a gallon and that this levy would make the motorist the heaviest single taxpayer in most states and gasoline the largest single source of revenue. Yet aggregate income of all states in 1932, the year for which latest income data are available, is reported by the U. S. Department of Commerce as $2,150,182,297, of which $511,011,742, or 23.7%, was derived from taxes upon gasoline. The motorist probably contributed more than one-fourth through gasoline taxes in 1933, it is estimated by the American Petroleum Industries Committee, collections from this levy, increasing to $518,195,712, while income from other taxes declined.

Florida in 1932 collected 56% of its total revenue from gasoline, the largest share of any state. Nearly half of Ohio's income came through motor fuel sources, and 10 states—California, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Mississippi, Nebraska, North and South Carolina, Oklahoma, and Tennessee—each collected one third of total income from this one commodity.

An additional federal gasoline tax is collected in all states, and in some states there are also additional county and municipal taxes upon motor fuel.

BEAUTIFUL GRAPES FROM CAMPTONVILLE

John D. Ramm, of Camptonville, brought some beautiful Black Morocco and some Malaga grapes to the Nugget office yesterday. Mr. Ramm is selling them in Nevada City. When he was showing his grapes a Lodi visitor happened to be there and was greatly surprised that such wonderful grapes could be produced "In Them Thar Hills." He seemed to think that Lodi with its score of state fair prizes had a corner on all prize winning grapes.

MORE NEW HOMES

Mr. and Mrs. George Von Dornum moved into their home on upper Boulder street this week. They purchased a lot this spring from the late Lewis Davidson and have built the modern four room cottage.

Bert Foreman and family have completed the first installment of their new home northeast of Nevada City's limits and moved in Wednesday. Plans are to add to the house in the near future.

Mrs. Alfred Heether came down from Camptonville early this week. Her home on Zion street is being painted and repapered.

LAVA CAP MINE

Drifting operations, to the north in the Central and south in the Banner shafts on the same vein on the Lava Cap property, continues in good ore.

The 300 ton daily capacity mill is treating from 200 to 250 tons of ore per day.

Superintendent Otto E. Schiffner, who has worked unceasingly in reopening this property, states he now has a mine in the making.

FORTY YEARS AGO
N. C. FIRST PHONE

O'Connell and Francis Conlon, were our first telephone operators. In 1895 Mr. Winton found that the switchboard duties were taking too much of their time, and he engaged Miss Bessie Stevens to handle the telephone calls."

Miss Stevens, who is now Mrs. W. L. Mobley, of this city, says that, during the Spanish-American war, dispatches were posted on the window of the telephone office, and there was always a crowd gathered to read them. These dispatches were telephoned by a news service in Sacramento. Mrs. Mobley wrote the message in longhand, and then pasted the "flash" dispatches on the window.

Mrs. Mobley was alone at the switchboard for about four years, but, in 1899, Miss Ferdinand Muller, who still resides here, was engaged to assist her. Mrs. Mobley continued as operator until 1900.

"In the very early years of the exchange," said Mrs. Mobley, "It was customary for the operator to tell the person who was making a call the proper ring for the called party. After the operator set up the connection, the subscriber would do his own ringing. Soon equipment was installed so that the operator could do the ringing by means of a hand-crank. However, telemen were ingenious, and it was long before we were able to ring merely pressing a button. The tricity for the bells came from generator which was run by a waterwheel, located in the re the store."

VADA DROUGHT OWS UP MINE ILL OPERATION

L. Richie, writing for the Min- and Industrial News from Reno es that shortage of water, result he widespread drouth, has inter- ed milling operations at many ts in the mining country and s involving the constructing of mills are being held up until ators can have some assurance dependable water supply. Fol- ng the installation of a flotation rtment, the West End Cons. mill onopah started recently to treat from the Clark-McLaughlin mine recently opened New Deal prop- , two miles south of Tonopah, has been compelled to suspend rations because of a lack of wan starting this plant it was the n to use the water again after ling, but the highly ovidized ore, rying free gold, remained in sus- sion to such a degree that it was nd impracticable to operate with the limited flow of water available. An additional water supply may be obtained from the local water company or by pumping from one of the deep shafts in the district.

A similar situation has tied up milling operations in several other districts. The recently completed 200-ton flotation mill on the Pony Meadows mine of the Stone Cabin Cons. Mines Ltd., in the Como district was cut down to a single shift by failure of the water supply and is now under the necessity of awaiting the further sinking of its winze, below the main haulage tunnel, to provide an adequate water supply. The winze is in a wet vein, 207 feet wide on the winze level, and there is no doubt that another 25 to 50 feet of sinking will supply the needed flow of water.

By Alexander McNulty

PROBLEM OF THE RAILROADS

An interesting point arising at this time is the fact of the railways of the country applying to the I. C. C., for permission to increase freight rates to the amount of $170,000,000 per year. Incidently, this serves to remind of the fact thas government in business is no new thing; that we have long been familiar with government regulation of business through regulation of railroad and other public utility rates.

The railroads claim that due to increased wages and added material costs their operating expenses have been increased nearly $300,000,000 a year. It is a well known fact that many of the railroad systems, even those which have not gone into bankruptcy, have been unable to meet their interest charges on their outstanding obligations without federal assistance.

It has long been maintained that our present day railroad system is obsolete and to a great extent responsible for our faulty system of distribution. It is estimated that the railway system of the United States represens an investment of practically $20,000,0000,000. How much of this investment represents water is debatable. There is no question however, but that the greater portion represents an investment in something that has served its purpose but that is incapable of further serving purposes that our continued progress and well being as a nation demands.

Astute and far seeing financial geniuses, through an ingenious system of distributing railroad obligations and securities in the form of bonds and shares to such institutions as life insurance companies, savings banks, mutual loan companies etc.,; in such a way that the most modest of investors would, through their insurance policies, saving accounts, etc., have a very definite interest in the railroad; have thus devilishly contrived to so complicate the matter of railroad finance that government itself is obliged to bolster up and perpeuate a thing not economically sound.

In the railroads, as a whole, we have something that is entirely contrary to the laws of our present system. A thing that by reason of its being in a great part obsolete, may be classed as unproductive and dead. According to the laws of our system of finance, if a venture be sound, it takes its profit. On the other hand, if a venture be unsound it must take its loss. The law must work both ways. In this instance, however, we have the experience of witnessing capital asking that Government interfere to suspend one of these relations, namely; that one in regard to loss. According to the law, if capital in time of trouble may dodge the obligation to bear its own loss, it may find that it has forfeited the right to take profit.

Science and modern mechanical efficiency has so far advanced that, given free rein with the vast sources of potential capital available, a new spstem of transportation completely covering the country constituting in part all modern rail transport and in part, all modern motorized and water-borne transport; could and would be conceived and put into effect in a relatively short period of time. Under exisiting circumstances however, the financial complications of the transportation system being such as they are. Government does not see fit to allow this law to function and prefers that the country stagger along under this tremendous load of this dead and unproductive thing.

It has been said in many quarters that "what capital and labor both need is the birth of a new industry." The rehabiliation or better still, the building of a modern system of transportation within the United States would fill such a need. It should not be too much to hope that our leaders in Government shuld soon recognize this need and let our obsolete system of transportation go the way of other things that have served their purpose and become impractical and uneconomically sound.

MACK MINES

A larger pump has been installed at the Mack Mines, Ltd., in the Canada Hill district, to handle the tremendous flow of water encountered in cross-cutting operations at the 105 foot level.

The mine was shut down several days but work is progressing nicely and it is felt certain they are nearing their objective. Bruce Wallace is superintendent of the property.

C. C. C. BOYS CUT DAMAGE BY 1934 FOREST FIRES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—The Civilian Conservation Corps probably prevented 1934 from going down in forest service history as California's most disastrous fire year.

A report of fires and fire damage in all California national forests up to September 20th reveals that in number of blazes, 1934 topped the five-year average and the record fire year of a decade ago. But in acreage burned and cost of fire fighting, 1934 is below average, a fact that is traced directly to the skill of the CCC members as fire fighters.

1,890 FIRES FLAME

California forest suffered 1,890 fires up to September 20th. The past five-year average is 1,107 per year. But only 80,698 acres were burned in 1934, whereas the average is 110,173 acres per year. And the cost of fire-fighting was $215,586, which is $52,243 less than average. There were 206 major blazes between January 1st and September 20th, thirty-one more than average, but the percentage of fires reaching major proportions was considerably less.

NUMBER IS LISTED

The number of fires in Northern and Central California national forests follows:

El Dorado, 101; Klamath, 168; Lassen, 241; Mendocino, 39; Modoc, 98; Mono, 18; Plumas, 196; Sequoia 77; Shasta, 362; Sierra, 95; Stanislaus, 91; Tahoe, 101; Trinity, 71.

The year 1924 is considered California's record fire year. But 1934 had more fires, with less than half the number of major conflagrations, about one-fifth as much timber, burned, and less than half the cost of suppression.

SIERRA COUNTY MINES

SCALES PLACERS

The Scales Placers, an immense gravel property above Downieville, is being opened by New York capital. Vigorous reconstruction is being done on ditches and flumes, new equipment has been installed and the management plans to start production in the near future. It is said extensive deposits of commercial gravel are available for future mining. The property ranked among leading properties in early hydraulicking days.

GOLDEN BEAR

Restoration work is being rushed on the Golden Bear mine near Downieville. The shaft house and hoist were destroyed by fire a few days ago. This is a quartz property and good progress was being made in mining and development of the property until stopped by the fire.

ARTISTIC DECORATIONS ON BANK OF AMERICA BUILDING

The big medallions set in the upper walls on the sides of the Bank of America, are causing a good deal of favorable comment. The medallions are about three feet in diameter and represent a great ship in full sail. It might be taken as a symbol of Nevada City's present progress, 'Sailing Onward."

George Walling has returned from a summer spent at the Tahoe Forest summer camp on Lake Tahoe. He is greatly improved in health. He said the camp has had a busy summer and while there was more traveling by auto than usual, the number at camp was about the same. More building has been done about Lake Tahoe than in three or four years. Mr. Kaiser, president of the Six Companies, who are erecting Boulder Dam, is building a wonderful summer home at Tahoe Pines.

Pres-to-Logs!
"THE MAGIC FUEL"
FOR FIREPLACE, FURNACE, HEATER AND WHEREVER SOLID FUEL IS USED

Pres-to-logs are the ideal fuel. They are clean; easily handled and stored; they make no soot and little smoke; form almost no ash; make no sparks; burn long and steadily; give great heat; and furnish their own kindling.

Each log measures 4 by 12½ inches and weighs about 8 pounds. Pres-to-logs are made by compressing dry ground wood under the tremendous pressure of 10 tons per square inch. This welds the particles into a solid log more than 3 times as dense as wood.

It's easy to start a fire with Pres-to-logs. Just split them crosswise into wafers for kindling, or into any lengths desired.

Pres-to-logs are economical. Almost nothing is wasted in smoke and ash. Very little draft is needed. They burn slowly and steadily, giving forth an intense heat.

The machine, which makes Pres-to-logs under such terrific pressure, was perfected only after long and costly experiment. It is fully patented. There is nothing like Pres-to-logs.
